The U.S. Congress passed the Indian Removal Act on this day in 1830. This proposed, or virtually compelled, the exchange of Indian lands in any state or territory of the eastern United States for lands west of the Mississippi River,